

A Network Theatre Company production

at Network Theatre, Lower Road

Murder in the Cathedral

by T. S. Elliot / directed by Trevor Harvey

Performances:

07/12/2005 - 10/12/2005

'Murder in the Cathedral' is a compelling political drama, set in a breaking moment in history - the murder of Thomas á Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, in Canterbury Cathedral.

In this electrifying production, T S Eliot's lyrical writing will be infused with contemporary interpretation, elements of current and past history blending to create significant, stimulating theatre. In a story of driving passions, a complete sensory experience that will be both contentious and visionary - using powerful images from our world past and present to show how times have changed but the passions have not.

See the January 2006 Newsletter review.