

A Network Theatre Company production

at Network Theatre, Lower Road

The Three Musketeers: 3-6 & 10-13 December 2008

by Willis Hall adapted from the novel by Alexandre Dumas / directed by Leigh Shine

Performances:

03/12/2008 - 13/12/2008: No performances 7, 8, 9 December.

Reading: 18/09/2008 19:00

Audition: 23/09/2008 18:30

Audition: 25/09/2008 18:30

Willis Hall brings Dumas' swashbuckling tale to the stage in a lively, tongue-in-cheek version of the original book. Set between 1625 and 1628 (nearly half past four), some of the characters are based on genuine people in history, while others are purely fictional. D'Artagnan, a young Gascon, goes to Paris to join King Louis XIII's Musketeers and is befriended by three valiant members of that force: Athos, Porthos and Aramis. He shares their adventures, foiling the evil plans of Cardinal Richelieu and Milady de Winter to discredit Louis' wife, Anne.

Slick, sexy and full of sword fighting, this splendid romp sees the director take some serious seasonal liberté with the story. Awful fun, and fun for all!

Please note that some listings publishers have the wrong information about this production - it is not an interactive children's show. It would appear they get their information by scanning the web and have picked up data about a show from earlier in the year in Kent!

There is a special children's ticket at £6, for 8-15 year-olds when accompanied by an adult. The production is not suitable for children under 8. These special tickets are only available via the cast and crew.

Downloads:

- Poster
- Programme
- January 2009 Newsletter review